6. Percentages are meant for general impressions only. Due to rounding, percentage totals may be slightly greater or less than 100 percent.
7. This estimate is calculated by adding the numbers of public charter school students and tax-credit scholarship students; and then divide that sum (3,598) by our estimated total number of K–12 students (198,452) in the state of New Hampshire.
8. U.S. Department of Education, Institute of Education Sciences, National Center for Education Statistics, Common Core of Data (CCD). Data for the 2013–14 school year. Student subgroup data is based on total K–12 students in public schools or district schools, depending on data point. We subtracted the total number operational charter schools [public schools] from the total number operational schools [public schools] to get the number of public district schools.
